Death of Mr. G. W. Stevens

The death of Mr. G. W. Stevens took place at his residence in Cobocook, on Friday, March 24, 1911, at the age of 53 years, 7 months and 4 days.

Mr. George Wellington Stevens was well and favourably known in this district. He was born in the township of Stanhope and early in life became interested in public affairs and served his township as councillor, afterwards as reeve. He was enterprising in spirit and besides looking after his farm became an active partner in the ownership of a flourishing saw mill business at Beekong Lake. When the Gull River Lumber Company was formed, he was one of the shareholders and eight years ago was chosen manager, which position he held till the time of his death, ever studying the interests of his firm.

His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevens, moved to Stanhope more than half a century ago, where his aged father died, the mother recently moving to Fenelon Falls, where she passed away on Wednesday last, two days previous to the death of her son.

Mr. Stevens is survived by a faithful wife, who was Miss Jane Slason, sister of Messrs. James M. Black and Clair Slason of Stanhope. There are also two sons and three daughters, viz: Mrs. John Cowen, Catharine, Misses Ellen, Caroline and William, at home; Arthur, recently of British Columbia; and Robert of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon to the Cobocook cemetery and was in charge of Rev. Chaffie of the English Church. A very large number was present, among whom were prominent men of Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Minden, besides the friends from Stan-

ROBIN

Hey! Robin lad, ye're welcome,
For we're wearin' it wi' the snow,
The days an' nights hae been sae lang,
Sin' first ye gaed awa.

See ye
We're wearin' it wi' the snow,
Sae come rich an' fine,
An' sing Robin, sing.

For ye've sang o' winter's fleein',
An' birds upo' the wing;
An' the first bit green abune the grund,
Sing, Robin, sing.

Bless, ye're wee rid breastie,
An' ye're news, we're gleesome ring;
Ay! lad we're proud tae see ye,
Sing, Robin, sing.

Dear Robin, ga'e ye'll bide wi' us,
'Till since mair ye tak' wing,
We'll open in the glomin',

The pulpit of the Methodist church was occupied on Sunday evening last by the Rev. Mr. Pethick of Toronto, who delivered a very forcible address. He also gave several song selections with guitar accompaniment. Mr. Pethick is doing missionary work for the W. C. T. U.

Mr. Dickson, Methodist missionary, has been suffering from a severe cold for the past ten days but is now much improved.

father died, the mother recently moving to Fenelon Falls, where she passed away on Wednesday last, two days previous to the death of her son.

Mr. Stevens is survived by a faithful wife, who was Miss Jane Sisson, sister of Messrs. James H. Mack and Clair Sisson of Stanhope. There are also two sons and three daughters, viz: Mrs. John Cowen, Carnarvon; Misses Ellen, Caroline and Willma, at home; Arthur, recently of British Columbia; and Robert of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon to the Cobocook cemetery and was in charge of Rev. Chaffie of the English Church. A very large number was present, among whom were prominent men of Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Minden, besides the friends from Stanhope.

Haliburton Happenings

On Monday we had, or thought we had, some prospect of spring weather as the air was quite warm and the rain falling in copious showers. On Tuesday we awoke to the fact that winter had not quite finished his career although it has been a continuation of frost and an abundance of snow. However, we must accept the seasons as we do the fashions and refrain from finding fault with that which we have no power to change. Wednesday was somewhat warmer but rather hazy with slight indications of a change in the near future.

The robins have again made their appearance and their welcome notes may be heard in the early morning.

Malloy and Bryan's factory has commenced operations after having undergone extensive repairs.

Many of our citizens intend building this summer and in consequence are busy putting things in order. There is quite a boom in real estate, and Haliburton is expected to go forward with leaps and bounds.

The saw single and bath mills will commence their season's work in a few days. These industries give employment to a number of men during the season of spring, summer and autumn. In short, business is in a very prosperous condition not only here but throughout the Province, which is one good reason for the strong feeling against the Reciprocity pact.

Rev. Mr. Watson, Presbyterian minister of Minden, preached his farewell sermon here on Sunday. His friends here wish him many happy days in his new field.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robertson have returned from their trip to the States.

Winning Honors

The following from the Stratford Daily Herald will be of interest to the many ECHO readers as Mr. Hollefreund is an old Minden boy:

There is one show window on Downie street which is attracting even more than its usual amount of attention just now. It is one of the big display windows of the J. A. Duggan store and the cause of it all is that there is exhibited there a very large framed photograph of the staff and student body of the Normal school. It is possibly the largest picture of its kind ever prepared in Stratford and reflects credit on Mr. A. R. Hollefreund of the Hartland studio, who was the photographer. Last year Mr. Hollefreund received merited congratulations on the splendid work done on the Normal group of that term and this year's picture even exceeds in artistic finish that of 1910. The picture is attracting large crowds.

DEAR SIR:—In regard to school matters, in S. S. No. 7, Galway, I must say that I think both correspondents have said quite enough.

I was secretary-treasurer for about thirty years, and when the present secretary has enjoyed the situation that long he may think there is something wrong with his "head-top."

We had a public school meeting on March 4th, 1911, with a full attendance, and by a majority vote at that meeting, I was asked to pay a certain sum in full of all demands as balance due said school section. I paid one hundred cents on the dollar and now hold a clear receipt.

Trusting that this will be satisfactory, and thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space,

I remain yours very truly,

A. J. FORD, P.M.

THE BOY SCOUTS

Boy Scouts from the Overseas Dominions will have official standing in the Coronation procession, although provision had not at first been made for them. How detachments are to get to the old country and who is to pay the expenses of the trip is another question.
The Canadian Century of Montreal is sending a squad of twenty, the boys to be drawn from all parts of Canada, and it is not unlikely that Colonel Sherwood and the Dominion Council will arrange to send a second squad. The Century party will sail on the Empress of Ireland with the Canadian Coronation Contingent of Canada's official delegation and will travel like real soldiers under transport of war conditions.

An aged woman ended her life in a creek near Ingersol and the body was not found for several days.

Captain Warburton had gone out to his day the Army and Navy, else she would have been pleased to make me make his acquaintance.
 My theory was that Miss Hens's trouble was mental and had come from a shock; also that she would have recovered from that shock by natural process, or might have recovered, but was kept in the hallucination by misapprehension of other words she made herself think that Captain Warburton was with her by believing he was with her. The problem before me —as I saw it—was to tell Captain Warburton. He was dead to all other persons, and it was my business to tell her this?
 One evening when calling on Miss Beale I said to her, "By the bye, I was introduced into the Army and Navy club the other day and met Captain Warburton."
 I distasteful to him seemed to disturb her—that a pained expression passed across her face. So I made but a more remark about him—a remark conveying something especially wished to convey. "He is not looking very well. Then, without waiting for a reply, I turned the subject.
 Once or twice after that I mentioned hearing that Captain Warburton and never failed to remark that he seemed to be ill. My process, or rather, attempted process of cure was necessarily a slow one, and by burying I treated to spoil all. Indeed, I was not willing to take any risk by being on my own account as well as the lady's.
 When I began my course of treatment
 I hardly dared to enable her to get rid of the image she was creating of her former lover. Before I had known her a month I hoped to put myself in her place.
 As soon as I dared not decidedly I wrote her a note stating that I had a very important communication to make to her and I hoped she would
 I would call for her the evening.
 I called and found her anxiously expecting me.
 "Mrs. Warburton," I began at once,
 "your husband yesterday called at my

ILLUSION
A Lady Believed That Her Dead

Association.

Why, really, she is going out of the room, God rest her."

"I say, and as she walked, she seemed to be looking up, as if at some one, and yet there was no one there."

"How believe," added my companion, "that the man whom she considers her husband is attending her. He comes and goes. Whether his being at not being with her has anything to do with a greater or less degree of mental derangement I don't know. In society she is never seen without him. On all other subjects I consider her perfectly rational. She is respected and beloved and received everywhere. No one has told her that other people do not see her attendant and that she suffers under a hallucination. Nevertheless she knows others do not see him. Still, it is impossible for her to see that she does not see him herself."

THREE PART

"This is the story. She is Miss Marion Beale. When the Spanish-American war broke out she was engaged to Sam Warburton, a captain in the United States Infantry. She was very much in love with him, and the parting with him quite broke her down. He was with his regiment in all the fighting that occurred from the time the American troops landed till the last shot was fired. Indeed, it was one of these last shots that killed him."

"It seems that when he went to the war his betrothed had a presentiment that he would never come back to her. She remained in the ranks of the fighting, always dreading to see his name. There were a good many hot battles in that war, besides a lot of disease. Miss Beale suffered from the strain and received a terrible shock at last. News came that the Spanish forces at Santiago had surrendered and the war was over. The people of the United States were rejoicing at the victory, and hundreds whose relatives in the army had been spared to them were looking forward with delight to their return. Miss Beale shared in these rejoicings. There came a belated report that her lover was killed at the very last. She withdrew from the social world for a time, and when she reappeared was observed to act as if attended by Captain Warburton."

"And how do you know that he is not attending her?" I asked.

"Harris looked at me as if he had just suddenly struck with the belief that I was as deaf as the lady."

"I am a physician, and a physician of the newest school. In other words, I am a slow one, and by burying I feared to spoil all. Indeed, I was not willing to take any risk by haste on my own account as well as the lady's. When I began my course of treatment I simply desired to enable her to get rid of the image she was creating of her former lover. Before I had known her a month I hoped to put myself in his place."

As soon as I dared act decidedly I wrote her a note stating that I had a very important communication to make to her, and I hoped she would spare herself to endure a separation. I would call the same evening."

I called and found her anxiously expecting me.

"Mrs. Warburton," I began at once, "your husband yesterday called at my office to consult me on the matter of his health. I found him suffering from a heart trouble which, should he receive the slightest shock, might carry him off. I have told him that absolute quiet is essential and have advised him to go away from the city, from every one he knows or who knows him, and to live absolutely alone, not communicating with any one. He has taken my advice and asked me to impart the news to you."

By this act I gave my patient a temporary setback, but this I expected. I saw that she was going through the strain she had suffered at receiving the news of Warburton's death. I did all I could to comfort her, but would not say that I believed the course I recommended would restore her husband to health. I left her, promising to return the next evening and give her more news.

When I saw her again she told me that the captain had been to see her before his departure—that he looked very badly, and she was very much troubled about him. This was an unexpected surprise to me, for I feared the wrath would see her occasionally without my permission. I told her to tell him if he saw her again that the excitement attending the meeting might kill him.

It was evident that Miss Beale would not very long bear the strain I was giving her. She couldn't sleep, suffered from nervous paroxysms and was rapidly losing flesh. I must kill Captain Warburton as soon as possible. I decided to announce his death to her, but was forced to choose between doing so and restoring him to health. I chose the former course. Fortifying myself with restoratives, I went to see her one afternoon, and when she came into the room where I case. Miss Beale suffered from the strain and received a terrible shock at last. News came that the Spanish forces at Santiago had surrendered and the war was over. The people of the United States were rejoicing at the victory, and hundreds whose relatives in the army had been spared to them were looking forward with delight to their return. Miss Beale shared in these rejoicings. There came a belated report that her lover was killed at the very last. She withdrew from the social world for a time, and when she reappeared was observed to act as if attended by Captain Warburton.

"And how do you know that he is not attending her?" I asked.

Hollister looked at me as if he had been suddenly struck with the belief that I was as daff as the lady.

Now, I am a physician, and a physician of the newest school. In other words, I believe in autosuggestion, which means that people suffering from certain ailments, especially of the so-called nervous order, are producing the trouble themselves on themselves by believing they have the ailment in question. I was very much struck with the personnel of Miss Beale and was seized with a desire to cure her of her hallucination. I wished Hollister to tell her that he knew a man who did not share the opinion of most people that she suffered from hallucination, but that such a thing as the real presence of Captain Warburton was possible. My ultimate object was to gain her entire confidence.

"Do you really mean," asked Hollister, "that you have any idea whatever that a wraith is attending her?"

"My reply is the question I have just asked. How do you know there is not?"

"I don't know it, but I'll bet you $100 to 10 cents there isn't."

"What use in betting? Neither of us would win, since neither of us could prove his position. However, I wish you to introduce me to your cousin."

I received the introduction. I made no mention of what Hollister had told me, chatting on trivial subjects. I asked permission to call upon the lady and received it. When I called I saw at once by my reception that Hollister had told me what I had said to him. In me she had found some one to sympathize with her. We had not been together long before she regretted that that the captain had been to see her before his departure—that he looked very badly, and she was very much troubled about him. This was an unwelcome surprise to me, for I feared the wraith would see her occasionally without my permission. I told her to tell him if he saw her again that the excitement attending the meeting might kill him.

It was evident that Miss Beale would not very long bear the strain I was giving her. She couldn't sleep, suffered from nervous prostrations and was rapidly losing flesh. I must kill Captain Warburton as soon as possible. I dreaded to announce his death to her, but was forced to choose between doing so and restoring him to health. I chose the former course. Fortifying myself with restoratives, I went to see her one afternoon, and when she came into the room where I was I showed her by my sympathetic and melancholy expression that I had bad news for her.

"He is dead!" she wailed.

I took her hand and pressed it, but said nothing. I drew her to a sofa and, sitting by her side, told her as briefly as possible that one evening while the captain was sitting in his lonely abode some one had fired a shot outside. Even so slight a shock had arrested the beating of his heart.

I was greatly surprised at the resignation with which she received the melancholy news. She asked me about the funeral. But I had prepared myself for this. I told her that I had already directed that the captain be buried at his retreat. I confessed to have deceived her in many things about him for his and her good.

I left Miss Beale without having had occasion to use the restoratives. I had great hopes that I would restore her to health, and these hopes were fulfilled. She improved rapidly after this and, so far as I or others could discover, did not see the figure of her former lover, though she told me she dreamed of him, and sometimes these dreams were so realistic that she was not sure but that she was awake when she dreamed them. I told her that the vision was simply the result of a nervous strain.

As I hoped, even these symptoms in time faded away, and within six weeks after I had killed Captain Warburton I felt sure that I had put a quietus on him forever.

I believed now all that remained to be done was to give my patient a strong tonic. But instead of drugs I gave her a trip. I sent her abroad, and she remained abroad for six months. Shortly before she was to return I wrote her that I needed an outing and would meet her at Nice, where she was getting rid of the winter. I found a great change in her. She had gained twenty pounds in flesh and gave every indication of vigorous health.

But a surprise was in store for me. Grasping my hand with fervent gratitude, she said:

"Doctor, I know the obligation I am under to you for curing me of my hallucination. I myself at times suspected what it was, but I could never get rid of it."

A considerable part of my treatment I have not mentioned. It was interesting Miss Beale in myself. Before our return to America we were married.

who need the services of expert specialists why waste your money in treating with doctors you know nothing of, who waste your money with worthless electric baths or drug store nostrums, when you can get guaranteed, reliable, successful treatment from these Master Specialists, Drs. K. & K. have treated patients throughout Canada for over 10 years and are responsible for the cure of many cases. They accept only curable cases and should your case prove incurable it costs you nothing. If you are unable to call at our office for a personal examination we will send a Question List for you to fill up from which we can diagnose your case and tell you whether you are curable or not. Then we will prescribe specific remedial for your individual case which you can take at home. We have no cure-all remedy that we send to everybody like so many specialists do, but we prescribe the remedies required for each individual case to complete a cure. That's one of the secrets of our wonderful success when others fail. Send for our Free Booklet on Diseases of Men (Illustrated.)

NO POLITICS FOR HIM.

The oft-repeated rumor that Chief Justice Meredith is about to resign his position and re-enter political life as the saviour of the Conservative party, has again been revived.

I asked his Lordship as to the truth thereof this morning.

"There is no truth whatever in that story," he replied.—Toronto Star.

CANADIANS TO THE FRONT.

The mail which left Toronto on Sunday for England carried a letter containing the entries of a team of eight men and a leader, members of the 48th Highlanders, for the Royal military tournament, which is held at Islington, in northeast London, commencing on May 27th. As cable entries for the tournament are not accepted, they had to be made by letter, and they will be received in London just before the entries close. In addition to the eight men and a leader, a spare man will be sent. The Royal military tournament is the biggest event of its kind held in the British Empire.

A COUPLE OF FIRES.

On Thursday last the dwelling house and most of its contents owned by Mrs. Corbitt, of Minden Township, near Peterson's Corners, was totally destroyed by fire. We understand there was no insurance on the property so that the loss will be severely felt by the sufferer.

On the same day and about the same time the buildings of Mr. Robert Stevens, of Stannope, were totally consumed by fire, together with nearly all their contents. In this instance both dwelling house and barn were destroyed; there was a couple of tons of hay, a fanning mill and a threshing machine in the barn, besides other minor articles, all of which were lost. We have not been able to learn of any insurance.

some minor cases, and in the afternoon the cases of Morgan and Hamilton. Inst the G. T. Railway were taken up. The Court Room was crowded almost to suffocation to hear these interesting cases which were both tried together. The Plaintiff claimed damages from the Railway Co. for the loss of two horses killed on defendants track sometime ago. It appeared in the evidence that the Plaintiffs were drawing forest produce to the Railway track with a team of which each owned one horse, at an early hour in the morning before it was quite daylight the team was being driven with a load to the track when the reach of the sleigh broke upsetting the load and the horses ran away, running towards the Railway and on reaching it there being no fence on the Railway track at that point they took down the track until they came to a bridge into which they got entangled between the ties so that the owners could not get them extricated until the morning train ran into them and killed the team. The Plaintiffs swore that they tried to signal the train to stop it, but the engineer and fireman said they did not see any signal. The Plaintiffs had applied for a Jury to assess the damages and a Jury was called on the case. The learned counsel had quite a legal duel over points of law in the cases, the whole afternoon having been spent over them and the matter given to the jury who brought in a verdict of $60 in favor of Morgan and $10 for Hamilton. Mr. Steers appeared for the defendant company and Messrs. O'Leary Q.C., & McDiarmid for the Plaintiffs.

Of the remaining cases undisposed of one was referred to the Judges Chambers in Lindsay, another was sent for trial at the next sitting of the Division Court in Lindsay and the balance were laid over till the next sitting of the Court here which is to be held on the 15th July.

QUITE AN EXPERIENCE.

Some of the learned counsel and witnesses attending the Division Court here on Friday last had quite an experience on their return trip from Minden to Kinmount. The night was dark, cold and wet, the roads were bad—very bad—the team were both "off horses." The driver was an experienced engineer on the railroad; but notwithstanding all this they found the ditch on two occasions during the trip, the result being that both driver and passengers reached Kinmount with a heavy dose of mud, well rubbed in, so that it required a hoe, half a cord of wood and Gil Scott's ablest and most persevering attentions for a couple of hours to clean, warm and refresh the weary travellers. It was the unanimous decision of the crowd that next time they took this trip under similar circumstances they would either secure comfortable beds in Minden for the night or else wait for the moon to rise. As it was they reached Kinmount in a torch light procession, the light being produced by the burning of a package of toilet paper of long lengths carried by one of the learned counsel as a precaution against accident.

HALIBURTON-NEWS.

Destructive Fire in Haliburton.

At 12.05 a.m. on Monday morning last the cry of "fire" resounded throughout the Village of Haliburton when it was discovered that the destructive element had got a start in the Queen's Hotel building, which together with the adjoining buildings belonging thereto were entirely consumed. The fire was a fierce one and made rapid progress. Owing to the energetic efforts of the citizens who formed a "bucket brigade" the fire was prevented from spreading although a cottage east of the burned buildings was thought several times to be consumed by the flames.

The Plaintiffs had applied for a Jury to assess the damages and a Jury was called on the case. The learned counsel had quite a legal duel over points of law in the case, the whole afternoon having been spent over them and the matter given to the jury who brought in a verdict of $60 in favor of Morgan and $40 for Hamilton. Mr. Stevens appeared for the defendant company and Messrs O'Leary Q.C., & McDiarmid for the Plaintiffs.

Of the remaining cases undisposed of one was referred to the Judges Chambers in Lindsay, another was sent for trial at the next sitting of the Division Court in Lindsay and the balance were laid over till the next sitting of the Court here which is to be held on the 15th July.

At 12.05 a.m. on Monday morning last the cry of "fire" resounded throughout the Village of Haliburton when it was discovered that the destructive element had got a start in the Queen's Hotel building, which together with the adjoining buildings belonging thereto were entirely consumed. The fire was a fierce one and made rapid progress. Owing to the energetic efforts of the citizens who formed a "bucket brigade" the fire was prevented from spreading although a cottage east of the burned buildings was thought several times to be doomed to be devoured by the fire element. We have not learned full particulars of insurance but we understand both building and contents were to a certain extent insured, very little of the furniture or other contents of the building was saved owing to the rapid progress of the fire. The Queen's was formerly kept by Mr. D. Kellatt, but more recently by Mr. Johnston, who is now thrown out of business as there is little apparent prospect of the owners re-building.

James Dover Esq., our respected Postmaster, returned home on Monday evening last after a holiday spent in Western Ontario for the benefit of his health after a severe attack of grippe, his friends were delighted to see him return fully restored to health.

Mr. Bemister and Mr. and Mrs. Spurr of this Village left here on Monday last for Beaverton to attend the obsequies of Mr. Bemister Sr. at Beaverton, father of Mrs. Spurr and Mr. Bemister.

Preparations are being made for building the new Town Hall here, which is to be a convenient and commodious building.

Miss Hopkins, of Kimmount, has been spending her holidays at home during Easter and returned on Monday last to resume her studies in the Albert College, Belleville.

Mr. J. H. Thompson, of the Dominion Hotel, has rented the farm lately owned by Mr. Wm. S. Morrison and purchased by Mr. John Howell who does not take possession this season.

We were greatly pleased to see our old and highly respected friend, Mr. W. Blair, of Blairhampton, able once more to visit the county town after being confined to his house by illness for fourteen weeks previously. Mr. and Mrs. Blair having driven down to Minden on Saturday last.

DIED.

In Minden village, on Monday, April 28th, 1897, Ralph Alexander, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hartle, aged 7 months and 12 days.

A queer misunderstanding occurred at Dr. McCarthy's residence, Barrie. Burglars broke into the house, and the doctor, mistaking one of them for his son, asked him to light a match. The burglar complied, mistaking the voice for that of his companion. Unfortunately the doctor failed to get a fair view of his visitor's face, and the burglars left suddenly.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON V, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 2.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xiii, 1-13—Memory Verses, 9-14—Golden Text, Mark xvi, 15—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

1. "Now there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers, as Barnabas, etc., and Saul. The work began at Antioch through the preaching of those who were scattered by the persecution about Stephen, and was followed up by Barnabas and Saul teaching the people for a whole year (chapter xi, 19, 26). The church at Antioch, hearing of the need, in temporal things, of the believers in Judea, sent them relief by the hands of Barnabas and Saul, who, having fulfilled their ministry, returned to Antioch.

2. "Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." Thus spake the Holy Ghost as the believers ministered to the Lord, thinking much more of His business than of any comfort of their own, and even mortifying the body if perchance the soul might be more alive to things eternal. It is written of Job that he said, "I have esteemed the words of His mouth more than my necessary food" (Job xlii, 12). When the disciples brought our Lord food at Jacob's well, He said, "I have meat to eat that ye know not of." "My meat is to do the will of Him that sent me and to finish His work" (John iv, 32, 34). When the things of the Lord are of more importance to us than aught else, we have the spirit of fasting.

3. "And when they had fasted and prayed and laid their hands on them they sent them away." The Holy Spirit is the one who has full control of all the affairs of the church during the time of our Lord's absence.

4. "So they being sent forth by the Holy Ghost departed unto Seleucia, and from thence they sailed to Cyprus." The Holy Spirit called them, sent them forth, and would use them as He saw fit that God might be glorified. All that the Lord Jesus said or did was by the Spirit, and He alone can do in and through us that which ought to be done.

5. "And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews, and they had also John as their minister." As servants of Christ we have but one book, the word of God, and but one Teacher, the Holy Spirit. This word we must make our constant study, and this word we must ever speak to whole-hearted reliance upon the Holy will always accomplish the Lord's pleasure and prosper in that whereunto He sends it (Isa. lv, 11). It is ours to be filled with it, and let the Spirit accomplish by it through us that which He pleases. Where the word of a king is there is power (Eccl. viii, 4), and ours is the word of the King of Kings.

18. "They came to Perga in Pamphylia, and John, departing from them, returned to Jerusalem." Having gone through Cyprus with the record of but one convert, such there may have been others, they returned to the mainland.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON VI, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 9.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xiii, 26-33—Memory Verses, 38, 39—Golden Text, Acts xiii, 38—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

26. "To you is the word of this salvation sent." By invitation of the rulers of the synagogue at Antioch, in Pisidia, to which place they came after leaving Perga, where Mark deserted them, Paul is preaching on the Sabbath day (verses 14, 15). His opening words are, "Men of Israel, and ye that fear God" (verse 16), and this, in substance, he repeats in this first verse of our lesson. He begins with the deliverance from Egypt and mentions the period of the wilderness, the judges and the reigns of Saul and David, then passes at once to Jesus, the Saviour of Israel, of the seed of David, who is the salvation of God prepared for all people, a light to lighten the gentiles and the glory of Israel.

27. "They knew Him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets which are read every Sabbath day." As it is written through John, "He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not; He came unto His own, and His own received Him not" (John i, 10, 11). It was the complaint of the Lord through the prophets that His people did not know Him. "Israel doth not know, My people doth not consider."

28, 29. "When they had fulfilled all that was written of Him, they took Him down from the tree and laid Him in a sepulcher." Although they knew Him not, yet they unwittingly fulfilled the Scriptures concerning Him. Both Herod and Pontius Pilate, the gentiles and the people of Israel, with all their indifference to or hatred of Christ, only fulfilled what God had determined before to be done (Acts iv, 27, 28), and yet they were all free agents. Spurgeon once said, "My God can rule free agents, leaving them absolutely free, and yet effecting all His purposes with them." I do not understand how this can be, but I trusting which God has said, "O death, I will be thy plagues" (Hos. xiii, 14).

38. "Through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins." We are sure that the kingdom will come and the nation of Israel be all righteous, and the earth be filled with the glory of God, but what is the present benefit of the work of Christ? The forgiveness of all sins. By sin came death and every woe. Our iniquities separate us from God. But in Christ there is full provision for the complete blotting out of all our sins. The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin. One of His last commands was that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem (Luke xxiv, 47).

39. "And by Him, all that believe are justified from all things." The law cannot justify any one, for the law is as holy as God, and all are sinners. But since God in Christ has taken the sinner's place and borne our sins in His own body, suffering the just for the unjust (Isa. liii, 5; 1 Pet. ii, 24; iii, 18), a full justification is granted freely to every sinner who receives Christ (Rom. iii, 24).

prayed and laid their hands on them they sent them away." The Holy Spirit is the one who has full control of all the affairs of the church during the time of our Lord's absence.

2. "So they being sent forth by the Holy Ghost departed unto Seleucia, and from thence they sailed to Cyprus." The Holy Spirit called them, sent them forth, and would use them as He saw fit that God might be glorified. All that the Lord Jesus said or did was by the Spirit, and He alone can do in and through us that which ought to be done.

3. "And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews, and they had also John as their minister." As servants of Christ we have but one book, the word of God, and but one Teacher, the Holy Spirit. This word we must make our constant study, and this word we must ever speak in whole hearted reliance upon the Holy Spirit, and "To the Jew first" seems to be the unchanged order (Rom. i, 16; ii, 10). The promise to Moses still holds good, "Now, therefore, go, and I will be with thy mouth and teach thee what thou shalt say" (Ex. iv, 12).

4, 7. Coming to Paphos, the deputy of the country, Sergius Paulus, sent for them, desiring to hear the word of God. Thus the Spirit leads together those who are ready to hear and those who are ready to speak the word of God, as when He brought together Philip and the eunuch, Simon Peter and Cornelius. When it is thus His doing, something is always accomplished to the glory of God, as in each of these cases. What, therefore, can be more desirable than to be filled with and controlled by the Holy Spirit? For our comfort we remember that our Lord Jesus said, "If ye, then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him" (Luke xi, 13). We have also the comfort of knowing that if we are filled with the word of God and controlled by the Spirit of God He will fit into our lips the right message at the right time (Prov. xxi, 18). And Math. x, 20, will be true of us as of the disciples.

8. "But Elymas, the sorcerer, withstood them, seeking to turn away the deputy from the faith." The same old serpent, the devil, and satan, who turned Adam and Eve away from God, is ever at work. He seeks to keep people from hearing the word of God by making believers indifferent to the command to preach the gospel to every creature, and when the word has been preached he will, if possible, take away the word out of their hearts lest they should believe and be saved (Luke viii, 12); or if it is received, he will, if possible, choke it that it may not bear fruit. Resist the devil (Jas. iv, 7).

9. "Then Saul, who is also called Paul, filled with the Holy Ghost, set his eyes on him." The Holy Spirit can look through our eyes as well as speak with our voice, and our eyes will then be searching in some little measure as Christ's were. But we will be unconscious of it, for anything like self-consciousness is in opposition to the work of the Holy Spirit. As it is written through John, "He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not; He came unto His own, and His own received Him not" (John i, 10, 11). It was the complaint of the Lord through the prophets that His people did not know Him. "Israel doth not know, My people doth not consider."

28, 29. "When they had fulfilled all that was written of Him, they took Him down from the tree and laid Him in a sepulcher." Although they knew Him not, yet they unwittingly fulfilled the Scriptures concerning Him. Both Herod and Pontius Pilate, the gentiles and the people of Israel, with all their indifference to or hatred of Christ, only fulfilled what God had determined before to be done (Acts iv, 27, 28), and yet they were all free agents. Spurgeon once said, "My God can make free agents, leaving them absolutely free, and yet effecting all His purposes with them." I do not understand how this can be, but I believe it.

30. "But God raised Him from the dead." See also verses 33, 34 and 37, and let this fourfold emphasis given by the Spirit in this lesson to His resurrection from the dead show you the importance of this great truth and recall to your mind the fact that by His resurrection from the dead He was declared the Son of God with power (Rom. i, 4). Our Lord Jesus was dead, but is alive for evermore, and has all power (Rev. i, 18). We, believing in Him, are one with Him, as children and heirs of God and joint heirs with Himself.

21. "And He was seen many days of them which came up with Him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are His witnesses unto the people." He was seen at least ten times during a period of 40 days after His resurrection before He visibly ascended from Olivet, to which same hill He will in due time return with all His saints (Acts i, 3, 11; Zech. xiv, 4, 5). The one thing for a believer to do is to be a witness by life and testimony to the great fact that Jesus Christ is His living Lord and Saviour coming again to fill the earth with righteousness. When we are ready for this, He will fill us with His Spirit to this end (Acts i, 8).

22. "And we declare unto you glad tidings." The angel at His birth brought "good tidings of great joy for all people" (Luke ii, 10), and we are commissioned to testify the gospel of the grace of God and the gospel of the glory of the blessed God (Acts xx, 24; 1 Tim. i, 11, R. V.). We are allowed of God to be put in trust with this gospel, and we are to speak it, not as pleasing men, but God, who trieth our hearts (1 Thess. ii, 4). But it is a trust committed to us for all people on earth. Are we faithful to our trust?

33. "As it is also written in the Second Psalm, Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten Thee." The Second Psalm tells us that, in spite of all the rage and vain imaginings of the ungodly nations, God will yet set His King upon His holy hill of Zion (Ps. ii, 6). And verse 7 here explained as referring to the resurrection of Christ from the dead to that end, and not to His birth in Bethlehem, as some might suppose. It is a great inspiration to be-the Spirit of God He will fit into our lips the right message at the right time (Prov. xxi. 11). And Math. x. 20, will be true of us as of the disciples.

9. "Then Saul, who is also called Paul, filled with the Holy Ghost, set his eyes on him." The Holy Spirit can look through our eyes as well as speak with our voices, and our eyes will then be searching in some little measure as Christ's were. But we will be unconscious of it, for anything like self-consciousness is in opposition to being filled with the Spirit. Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone (Ex. xxxiv. 29). And no doubt Stephen was unconscious that his face was as the face of an angel (Acts vi. 15). This is the first time that Saul is called Paul.

10. "Wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord?" Thus the Spirit in Paul addressed him, calling him a child of the devil and enemy of all righteousness. Some good people today would say that he was a child of God, and that God was his Father, though he was wandering from Him. But the Spirit of God does not talk so. The Lord Jesus said to certain religious people, "Ye are of your father the devil" (John viii. 44). It is also written of Cain that he was of the wicked one (1 John iii. 12).

11. "And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season." Instantly it came to pass, and he sought some one to lead him by the hand. His outward condition was now like his inward condition. He was truly a child of darkness. If his darkness was only for this life, or only for a season, it was well for him. But our Lord spoke of some who would be cast into outer darkness where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth (Math. xxii. 13). In Jude xiii we read of some to whom it reserved the blackness of darkness forever. Happy are those who, receiving the light, become children of light, and happier still, if as such they walk in the light.

12. "Then the deputy, when he saw what was done, believed, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord." Thus the devil overruled it and lost his man, and the Lord gained him. The word of the Lord righteousness. When we are ready for this, He will fill us with His Spirit to this end (Acts i. 8).

82. "And we declare unto you glad tidings." The angel at His birth brought "good tidings of great joy for all people" (Luke ii. 10), and we are commissioned to testify the gospel of the grace of God and the gospel of the glory of the blessed God (Acts xx. 24; 1 Tim. i. 11, R. The Second Psalm tells us that, in spite of all the rage and vain imaginings of the ungodly nations, God will yet set His King upon His holy hill of Zion (Ps. ii. 6). And verse 7 is here explained as referring to the resurrection of Christ from the dead to that end, and not to His birth in Bethlehem, as some might suppose. It is a great inspiration to believe that notwithstanding all hindrances and delays every promise of God shall be fulfilled; not one can fail (Joshua xxi. 14; 1 Kings viii. 58).

84. "I will give you the sure mercies of David." These sure mercies are set forth in II Sam. vii. 12, 13, and 1 Chron. xvii. 11, 12, and are more fully stated in connection with Israel's future glory in Isa. li.

85. "Thou shalt not suffer thine Holy One to see corruption." That David in Ps. xvi. 10, spoke of Christ and not of himself is made very plain in Peter's sermon at Pentecost, and also that David saw in the promise of God, not a mortal man, but an immortal man, risen from the dead (Acts ii. 25-31), in whom His throne and kingdom would be established forever.

86. "For David, after he had in his own age served the will of God (margin) fell on sleep." Being a child of God by faith in Christ Jesus, the thing for us then to do is to let Him accomplish His will in us in serving His purpose with us while we live. Let the question search us, Am I fully in His will for His pleasure or living for my pleasure? "Even Christ pleased not Himself" (Rom. xv. 3).

87. "But He whom God raised again saw no corruption." That body, although for us it tasted death, was as free from corruption as from sin. We are comforted by believing that even though our bodies see corruption "This corruptible must put on incorruption," and if we tarry (ill) in the world, "This mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. xv. 53). Death, which is the body and makes it sleep, is a sleep through corruption, but is an enemy which
